At school, we have been talking about the many ways we depend on our families, and how important it is to try to be a dependable person. Here is what we have been learning:

We Depend on Our Families

• We depend on our families in many ways — for food, clean clothes, a home to live in, and people to love and care for us.

• It’s good to be dependable. It means that people can count on us.

Let’s talk about this list together. Is there anything we should add to the list?
