Learning About Sexuality

We have been discussing some of the ways we discover what it means to be male or female. This is what we have been learning.

- We learn about being male and female from all our experiences with family members and friends and from what parents or guardians and teachers have explained to us.
- Sexuality is not just about bodies or body parts; it is about persons who are created by God as males and females.
- A Christian view of sexuality is that men and women are meant to respect and support each other, not use each other in casual sexual relationships.
- We show our respect for sexuality by the way we speak and by avoiding rude language or teasing people about their appearance.

How have your ideas about being a girl or boy changed from when you were little?
